

Proofreading a Story

REMEMBER After writing something, it is a good idea to read it through to make sure there are no mistakes.

This is the beginning of a story. Read it through, correcting the spelling mistakes and adding in the punctuation marks and capital letters.

where do you want to go on holiday this summer the teacher asked her class i want to go where it is hot so that i can plai in the sand and swim in the see said shainaz i want to go somewhere cold so that i can ski and play in the snow said justin i want to go on a ship so i can sail from town to town and sea lots of new things dreemed yoko but miss ben began where do you want to go on holiday

There are 13 missing capital letters, 4 missing full stops, 5 missing commas, 12 missing speech marks (6 pairs), 2 missing question marks and 5 spelling mistakes!

What do you think might happen next? Continue the story on the lines.

By: _____